

The Master Coach

In Becoming A Master Coach takes one thing, Understanding

Words create the construct and is the invisible glue that keeps it all together. Words are also the leverage for activating and maintaining a Learning Environment

The actions that one take revolves around the creation of a Learning Environment, the skills one develops into their players, and how one prepares their players for the big games

It helps to understand that the brain wants to learn, and that the brain learns & remembers best through visual imagery and pictures, and that the brain is also a transmitter & receiver of frequencies and information, which is crucial in understanding for the creation of teams

When you are Relaxed Yet Focused and work through Disciplined Simplicity, the whole that is created is always greater than the sum of its parts
